Course Material

Week 15: PRELIMINARY PAGES/APPENDIXES

Topic goals

By the end of the section the students should be able to:

- Place their preliminary pages properly.

WRITING PRELIMINARY PAGES

The preliminary pages of the dissertation, thesis, or research work is written at the completion of the entire research endeavour.

Preliminary pages are the initial pages in any research report designated for presentation for partial fulfillment of the requirements for the award of a degree of any department or faculty of any recognized tertiary institution. It presents a brief summary of the entire content of the research report and the name of the researcher, supervisor, department, faculty/college and university and date of presentation.

- Guidelines for presenting preliminary pages
  - ✓ Preliminary pages must be written after the entire work is completed.

- ✓ Each page of the preliminary pages is numbered using Roman numerals.
- ✓ Each page of preliminary page must start on a fresh paper or page.
- ✓ Overflow of pages is allowed, but the Roman numbering must be continuous and not broken.
- ✓ All title or heading must be in block (capital) letters.
- ✓ Formatting and arrangement of wordings must correspond to the acceptable format of the examining department / faculty, collage and/or university.
- ✓ Numbering of subheads, tables, figure diagrams etc. must be chapter based starting from 01 e.g. if a table appears in chapter 4 as table 1, it should be numbered Table 4.01, both in preliminary page and also in the body of the work.
- ✓ In table of contents, list of tables, figures, and diagrams, the use of dotted lines leading to the column where the page where the item appears should be avoided as it makes the pages clumsy.
- ✓ In the table of contents, numberings of subheadings should be chapter based.

- Components of preliminary pages

  The preliminary pages consist of the followings;

  0.1 Title

  0.2 Certification

0.3 Dedication
0.4 Acknowledgement

0.5 Table of contents

0.6 List of tables (if any)

0.7 List of figures (if any)

0.8 Abstract

This is also referred to as the title page or cover page of the work. However as a rule, on this page which is expected to be numbered Roman figure (i) and carry the title page, NEITHER the Title page or Roman figure number (i) is written, so do not write the page number.

0.3 DEDICATION

Page (iii) of the thesis report is the dedication page. In this page the researcher recognizes person(s) that have contributed immensely to the success story of his upbringing, academic, education or whatever role the person has played in their life and solely dedicates the work to that person as a reminder for that person's contributions/role played in the researchers life. Thesis or dissertation is dedicated to person(s) to whom the researcher places premium on and admiration.

Example of Dedication

DEDICATION

This work is dedicated to my children for their understanding throughout the programme.

0.4 Acknowledgements

This page deals with recognizing and appreciating the various person(s) that contributed to the success and completion processes of the research work. It is a page in which the researcher expresses his appreciation and in a little way, say thanks, to various sources, persons, organizations, individuals groups and all that cooperated with him to ensure a successful completion of the work and even the programme of study.

Example of Acknowledgement

ACKNOLWEDGEMENT

I humbly wish to express my profound gratitude to God Almighty for His care and guidance all through the programme and to my wonderful supervisor, Dr Ngozi Adizu that was always ready and available to read and guide me in this work and for her motherly advice throughout this programme. Her wonderful contribution made this work a huge success. I am also grateful to the V.C, Prof. Ozo M. Ndimele, Prof. Sam Otameri and members of the departmental board of the university especially the dean of post graduate school Prof. Godspower Irikana, dean faculty of education, Prof. Vicent Asuru and the HOD Business Education Dr. Sampson Wagbara for their efforts towards the completion of this study. Not left out of the train are my amiable lecturers, Prof. Loveday Okere, Prof. Lawrence Ajoku, Prof. Edward Adiele, Dr. Lawrence Amadi, Dr. Victor Barinua, Dr. Obinna Ikechi and other lecturers in the department of business education for their guidiance all through the programme.

My thanks go especially to my beloved wife Dr. O.J Moses-Promise and my lovely Children for their prayers, support and advice throughout this programme.

My special appreciation also goes to my boss Engr. Isaac Christian, Engr. Egba Ubaka, Hon. Lawrence Agbatutu, Pst. Chikwe Nwabali, Mr. Orukwu Glory, Mr. Okwu ThankGod, Barr. V.C Umesi, Pst. I.N.C Umesi, Engr. Austine Obi, Engr. Akio Uchendu, Bright Dimkpa, Mr. Eze Woko, Mr. Ndubuisi Obulor, Mrs. Emilia Umesi, Mr. Chima Nwosu and my wonderful siblings, Engr. Awulom Chinedu, Win Moses, Moses Nkechiyere, Moses Chukwukadibia, my beloved inlaws and the entire Agbatutu's family. Also acknowledged are my course mates, colleagues and host of others too numerous to mention.

Finally, I acknowledges all the authors whose pool of resources of ideas I drew from in the course of writing this work.

0.5 Table of Contents

In this page, the researcher presents a guide to the various chapters, headings and subheadings found in the research work / thesis, dissertation. It is a page that leads readers to the page in which is found the various contents of the work. In this page, a reader con identify where a particular subject matter is found in the work/thesis. The page is always subdivided into two unidentified column namely, the title of the contents and the page in which the titled contents could be found. Hence a glance at the table of content page enables the reader to be led to the page where the content title is located.

0.6 List of Tables

In this page all tables that appear in the work are listed indicating their member, title and the pages on which they appear. Like table of contents, list of tables is also presented in two columns. The first column being the title of the table and the second page number where it is located in the work. A table is a means of presenting in orderly manner facts or numbers together in rows and columns in such a way that it presents a logical meaning and understanding at first sight. A table is therefore a data format where information is compressed into numbers or facts for easy understanding.

0.7 List of Figures

The list of figures should be written in block letters. Figures refer to all designs, representations, and expression that convey messages in abridged form using either symbols or expression that are close to something real. A figure may represent a drawing in form of lines, graphs, cartoons and comics. Figures could be adopted or adapted from the researcher work.

0.8 Abstract

In thesis reporting, abstract refers to a precise, short and very brief writing containing a summary of the content of the thesis. Nworgu (1991) portrays abstract as a short account of the work in addition to information necessary for its retrieval which will help the reader to have an insight into what the work is all about.

Abstract therefore constitutes a brief summary of all the details of the thesis report. Thus summary is presented in such a manner that it contains all the essential ingredients of the thesis report. The number of words used in presenting abstract is always few. So should not be over worded. Readers are always interested in glancing through the abstract because of its brief nature. An abstract that is too lengthy discourages its reader, because its reading is time consuming.

Example of Abstract

ABSTRACT

The study examined institutional resources management and implementation of business education programmes in tertiary institutions in Rivers state. Thirteen research questions and thirteen hypotheses guided the study. The study adopted the correlational design. The population comprised 84 lecturers from four tertiary institutions in Rivers State. A sample size of 84 lecturers was drawn using the census method representing 100% of the respondents. The lecturers responded to a structured validated instrument titled "Institutional Resources Management and Implementation of Business Education Programmes Questionnaire (IRMIBEPQ) designed by researcher. The reliability coefficients of the instrument using cronbach alpha method was 0.79. Mean, standard deviation and Pearson Product Moment Correlation (PPMC) were used to answer the research questions while the hypotheses were tested using simple linear regression. Findings of the study showed that the relationship that exist between school environment and achievement of programme objectives in the implementation of business education programme is moderate (r = 0.56) and there was no significant relationship between school environment and the achievement of programme objectives in the implementation of business education programmes in tertiary institutions in Rivers State. It was concluded that the relationship that exist between school environment and achievement of programme objectives in the implementation of business education programme is moderate and there was no significant relationship between school environment and the achievement of programme objectives in the implementation of business education programmes in tertiary institutions in Rivers State. It was therefore recommended that the government should provide the needed institutional resources so as to make the school environment conducive for leaning and achievement of programme objectives in the implementation of business education programmes in tertiary institutions in Rivers State.

Appendix

Appendix is usually found at the end the work. It is the end of the work. It contains materials that are not the essential part of the research writing but which are useful in understanding some issues that may arise within the research text.

Appendices consists of:

- Figures
- Tables
- Rough data
- Research instrument used
- Photographs
- Statistics used in answering research questions and hypothesis

Properly arranged appendix provides information that help in understanding some aspect of the main text.
